

5 Methods of Instructional Design and Delivery for Employee Training

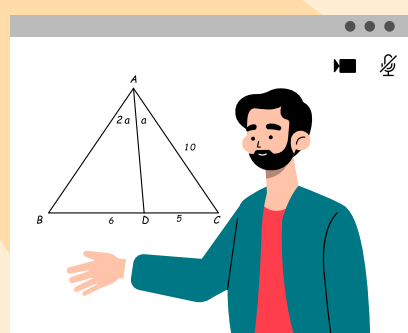

E-learning:

This is a popular option for employee training as it is flexible and can be accessed at any time.

Instructor-led training :

This type of training is led by an instructor in a classroom setting.

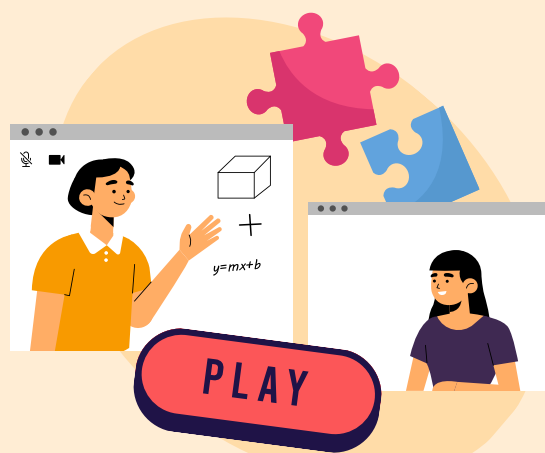

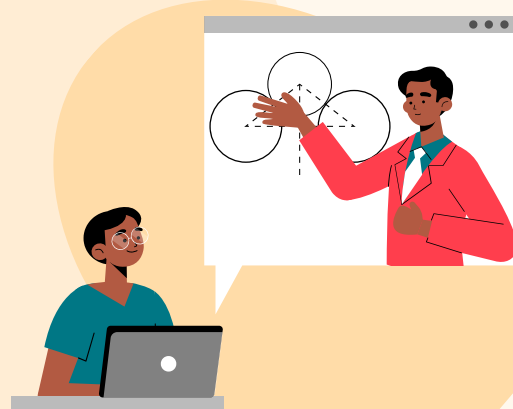

Webinars:

Webinars are live or recorded online presentations that employees can watch at their convenience.

On-the-job training:

This type of training takes place in the workplace and allows employees to learn while they are working.

Gamification:

Gamification is a fun and engaging way to teach employees new skills.

